Feel like playing table football, dancing, playing pool, gaming, skating, singing, playing, being creative, hanging out with friends, meeting new people, getting involved, making a difference or just chilling?

Then you're in the right place!

Be it a youth centre, youth meet-up, open meet-up or a youth or kids club, all these places offer activities for children and young people.

These are places where you can spend your free time, get involved and bring your own ideas to the table.

The staff can also help you with any problems you might have: e.g. worries at school, stressful situations involving friends and family or questions about your future.

What is youth work?

Youth work is a service offered to young people, which allows them to spend their free time under professional supervision.

How much does it cost?

Youth work is generally free of charge. There may be a fee for some of the activities offered (e.g. excursions).

Who is youth work for?

Youth work is for all young people! They are even entitled to it. This is enshrined in the law (section 11 German Social Code VIII, para. 1).

What does it involve?

Youth work helps young people to become more independent and self-sufficient.

All youth workers are trained professionals. There are also systems in place to protect service users. This ensures young people's safety when they attend youth work facilities. Youth work is organised and carried out by non-governmental associations or local authorities. However, this is regulated by law and paid for by the government. Should you have any questions, you can contact the centre staff.
